“ Otis was my Papaw and I have many fond memories with him. I recall a time he took me to the Dallas World Aquarium as a child and how for hours he would point out different birds and plants and tell me where they originated from, what their names were, and when they bloomed. He was like a walking encyclopedia of botany. But I remember him looking at me and saying you know what the most beautiful flower of all is don't you? With eagerness to hear his answer I asked “ What Papaw?” His answer was this....” the most beautiful flower is that of love and joy. When you let love and joy's seeds grow inside you, you slowly bloom and blossom into God's beautiful flower. Remember we are all flowers in God's garden.” I'll never forget that day or those very special words. I love my Papaw very much and I know he is now helping watch over God's garden here on earth.
