“ Hey Darren! I wanted to let you know that you "baby boy" is graduating this Friday. He is doing awesome, graduated a year early with and Associates Degree! I know you would be so proud! He reminds me of you alot - has your same gestures and mannerisms....and he still loves haunted houses and horror movies - that's alllll you! He is such a bright light in this dark world that you were running from...He loves our Lord Jesus and was baptized! I want you to know that - I know that was important to you! He is thriving and is shining...please continue to watch over him as he steps into adulating. Thank you for the blessing of being his mom - it truly was one of the most precious gifts I have ever received. We miss you so much and I talk about you often so he knows you. I try, I really do. He is looking forward to being a dad and talks about it often, I tell him how good of a dad you were to him..you loved him so much. Anyways, I just wanted you to know. (((hugs)))

“ That smile was contagious and that laugh could be heard for miles. I have never laughed so hard as the day we went to get pedicures and the lady remembered you from the last time as "monkey toes". I think about that every single time I walk into a nail salon. You were so much fun!You have been taken away from us way to soon. Keep an eye on everybody! We love you and will miss you tons!

“ Gone too soon. Your smile was warming and your laugh infectious. Keep watch over us now, for you protected us once in America's Navy, but we need you now in God's Navy. Semper Fidelis
