“ Sweet little Daddy, I miss you so much. You and I still have some good talks everyday. People may think I'm crazy, but I know you hear me and you still guide my decisions with your sweetness and giving heart. I had always tried to prepare myself for the day our Lord called you home, but nothing could have prepared me for that moment. If some people think there is no God, they need to think again, for I had 2 incidents involving my daddy that prove otherwise. I had prayed for years and years, especially after momma passed that the Lord would please not let my sweet daddy pass away in a strange place all alone. I had been spending nights with him in the hospital and would come home long enough to feed the cat, take a shower, get clean clothes and head back. That morning, I told him I would be right back and what I was going to do. I got home, put my key in the door and an overwhelming feeling came over me to get back to him. I didn't even open the door. I rushed back went in his room, mist was just him and I. I hugged him and kissed his cheek, told him what a wonderful father he had been to me and for him not to worry about me. I was gonna be ok if he was ready to go. I sang a soft verse of amazing grace in his ear and again told him daddy, don't you worry, I am going to be ok. I believed that Justin and I will mend the fence that has been broken, so if you are ready you go on and I love you. I looked up and a tear was rolling down his cheek and he was gone. No one can take that precious moment from me. The most precious moment of my life to be there holding him and comforting him as he took his last breath. I wasn't in that room more than 2 minutes when all of this transpired. Anything could have held me up . . . The train, a red light, but I know without a doubt the Lord made it possible to be there, what a gift. I love you Lord and Daddy.

This was at a surprise party that I nominated my daddy for “ a wish of a lifetime” through AARP. They were wonderful, paid for everything, which they accept donations for this event they continue to do so. I told them what a sweet man he was, etc, and they chose the letter I wrote about him out of thousands. We planned it right around his birthday of 87 years. He was so surprised family and good, good firefighter friends attended. The smile on his face was priceless. He was touched that people thought enough of him to come.

“ My Sweet Daddy, You made the world a better place and your legacy of love and caring will live on in the hearts of everyone who knew you. I am so very grateful that the Lord made it possible for me to be there for you especially after loosing momma. You and I shared some loving private times and talks that will remain with me until it is time for me to leave this earth. My heart hurt for you so loosing your partner of 68 years and David and Linda. I tried to make your last years as best as they could be. I know after all the loss of everyone, the spark in your eye was gone, but always lit up when I walked through your door. I love you and miss all of you so. The only thing that keeps me going is the promise of our Lord that we all who believe will be together for eternity. I miss you Daddy and I am so grateful I learned how to be a kind and giving person by your actions you showed to others whether you knew them or not, just like your momma. I give thanks to God everyday for letting me be there holding your hand when your journey here was over. That was the most precious moment of my life. I love you Daddy!

“ Mr. Dorough was a quiet pillar of kindness and strength. We were neighbors for a time in Krugerville. One particularly wintry day, our ditches became filled with snow. A stranger's car ended up in the ditch. Mr. Dorough was quick to use his expertise to remove the shivering stranger's car from the ditch and send the them on their way. That's who Mr. Dorough was. He didn't care if he knew someone, he was always quick to help anyone in need. His love for his wife and children overflowed in stories about them. If the world had more men like Frank Dorough, it would be a much better place. Heaven gained an honorable man that will be greatly missed here on earth. Condolences to his family and friends.

Mr. Reams, I haven't been able to get on this site until now. Today my daddy would have been 90 years old. Thank you for sharing your sweet memories and thoughts of him. I am his only remaining, youngest daughter, Carolyn Dorough Watts. You are right about his spirit to help others, especially strangers. I guess I have taken to heart some of his heart's loving traits and qualities in helping others. Thank you for your kind words and taking time to share. I know I try my best to still make him proud through my actions and caring for others. Hey heartfelt sincerity, Carolyn Dorough Watts
