“ As a freshman at TJC in 1960, I met Tom Graham as a fellow member of the famous Tyler Junior College Band, directed by Edwin "Pinky" Fowler. Tom was friendly to me as a stranger and a freshman. We were both trombonists, but Tom had a valve section with his trombone, the first I'd ever seen. Tom was much more accomplished than was I, so I was pretty in awe of his ability. I remember his willingness to befriend a timid, small town country boy like me, from Fairfield, Texas.

I hope that, at some point in his life, he came to know Jesus Christ as his personal Savior. Out of all his accomplishments, that would have been the most important. That didn't happen in my life until I was 30 years old. What a waste of 30 years of life.

thank you, Tom, for extending your hand of friendship to me. It made a difference in my life.
