“ Father God, I lift up my family who is mourning their loved one. I ask that You would bring them comfort amid this life-shaking event. Thank you for Your promise to walk with and even carry them as they travel through the darkness of grief. Let them not be overcome with sadness, as those who have no hope, but be strengthened by an awareness of Your presence. I pray a sense of calm would take hold, even while emotions around them run high, and that the peace you give them would overflow onto those nearby. In Jesus' Name, Amen

See ya later Jbo.. Tell Aunt Shirley I love her and try not to let Uncle Harold out fish you..

“ I first met J 28 years ago although I knew of him looking before that, crossing pathes many times over the years. One day it just kind of happened and we feel in love. We separated after a few years (I had things I needed to work on) but we always stayed friends, met up occasionally for lunches or just a quick hug here and there, then it happened again in May of this year. Our love picked right back up better than ever. We had so many plans coming up this spring and forward. My heart will forever miss you. My days and nights empty without your amazing love. Until we meet again, I'll cherish every new moment we shared and the many years of old. I love you an eternity. Always your girl. Thank you for loving me. You blessed my life and those around you with an irreplaceable light. ❤️

“ I could write a book with all of our memories together and with the kiddos. If you knew Jason, then you knew he liked to go barefoot or wear flip flops. He hated shoes. Well, he came home one day with 2 pairs of "truck stop" flip flops - a pair for him and a pair for me. He thought he had found a gem because they had bottle openers on the flip flops. He said he was officially ready for our Florida vacation after that find. Lol Then during that trip to Florida, we were on the beach, nobody around, and a bird flew over and pooped on his head. He was begging me to wipe it off, but I couldn't because I was crying from laughing so hard. I thought he was going to throw up. Haha!

Also, many of you may be in shock about this, but everytime we were riding around looking at land and houses over the years and talking about the future, he would stop out of nowhere and walk out to a field to pick me wildflowers. I took a picture of every flower he picked.

Jason was a softy and had a heart for my little girl, Kambrey. He would even blow dry her hair and took her to a daddy/daughter dance when she was in Kindergarten. Whatever she wanted, Jason got it for her, and he was so proud of that.

When we had all 5 kids together, we would all go to the pool or the lake, and Jason would literally have to hide from the kids because they wanted him to "throw them" 1,000 times each. His shoulders would be blood red from their little feet.

Lastly, the only piece of "jewelry" lol I ever received was a Jason Payne custom made ring from a Corona beer bottle. He snapped it off, clean cut, and said, "Don't say I didn't ever get you a ring." Lol!! I was so proud of that ring, and I still have it.

Love you forever, JMP

“ I wanted to share a memory of Jabo when he was younger. He was at our house and of course him and his cousin were running amok through the house not listening not minding so my mother says I'll get them so she jumps up and here they come and of course T ducked and Granny had a butter knife in her hand and she stuck it out and jaybo ran into it. We always laughed and talked about the time that Granny clotheslined Jabo. We 💕💕💕💕 you JABO. By the way he wasn't hurt.
