“ im your sister, and Im still not sure what to say.. but McKenzie misses her uncle jus jus, she still rings that bell that always annoyed you, but never got mad at her for it. I have your picture on my dresser mirror, and every time she sees it.. look its jus jus. Its like shes waiting for you, but shes too young to understand. Or when she made you play with her, or when she asks you to play hide and seek. And Ellie.. you loved trying to make her smile and laugh. And Im sad that you wont be here to see them grow up.. and that Ellie wont ever know you . We fought a lot, like I wont even try to count the times. Lol. I feel like Im still in denial, cause I always think youre coming back.. remember in school, Id go to the bathroom, but in reality I went by your class to check up on you. Half the time you noticed and told me to stop lol. I never did stop, until I started online school and graduated. Or when Id get home before you, or right before i went to work, Id wait for your bus to get there so I could tell you hi. I never got to say bye to you before you left Thursday morning. The last thing I ever said to you, was thank you, Bc you made pizza rolls for me and turned my light off. Things feel different without you. And I miss you even though all we did was argue. ❤️

“ Justin, I miss you so much! You are the kindest, sweetest soul. I miss seeing you in the break room before work, hearing your laugh, and I miss you buying pizza for lunch. I miss your smile the most. You were always happy & so very positive. You are a bright light in this world & will be missed greatly. Thank you for being a part of my life. Until we meet again...

“ Id known Justin for about 5 or 6 months, and I was always happy to see him. Always. He was always smiling and waving hellos, being kind to everyone. He has touched my life and made my worst late night shifts just a little bit better when I would see him. Justin had his spot outside of the front of Market Street, where hed stand, waiting for his ride. Hed stand there, waving to all the sackers passing in and out on carry-outs. Justin was always happy to help, Justin was always there to encourage you, Justin was always THERE. He was always making people smile, and I know everyone who knew him couldnt help BUT smile. He just had that aura about him. He was a blessing to my life, to all of our lives. I have many regrets in this life, but I do say meeting Justin was certainly not one of those regrets. Over-and-out buddy, I will miss you.

“ Justin was always a bright spot. I had only known him for about nine months, but almost every day that I worked in that short time, he managed to make me smile. Justin was the type of person that would constantly check up on you and make sure everything is okay. One of the kindest, gentlest souls I have ever had the pleasure of meeting, and I never realized how much I was genuinely thankful for his presence until the days that I have to live without it.

“ Justin, Words cant describe how much I will miss you. When I started working with you I couldnt wait to see you everyday when I worked. You were always on your break when I arrived at the store for my shift. You would ask me how I was doing and you were so friendly. Seeing your smile would always brighten up my day. You always knew how to look on the positive side of things. Whenever I was down you would always come up to me and cheer you up. You would always know how to put a smile on someones face. Not getting to see you at work will be the hardest thing I will have to go through so far during my time at Market Street. You will be loved and missed by all...

“ I worked with Justin for 3 1/2 years. In that time we became more than co-workers. We became friends. We worked the same shift. He would be in Starbucks getting a coffee and a danish. I would walk up to him, shake his hand and pat him on the back. And that is how we would start and end our time with each other. Justin was always smiling and always had a positive attitude. In the years that we worked together he taught me a lot. I never told him and I dont know if he knew. He taught me that no matter what kind of difficulties you have, if you work hard and have a positive attitude the impossible can be possible. So thank you, Justin. Thank you for the friendship, the smiles and the laughter. Most importantly thank you for leaving a permanent mark in my heart.

“ I am so incredibly sad! I have known Justin ever since we was younger. He went to school with my son Christopher Motte and so many of his friends. I was room mom for some of their parties. Justin was always so incredibly sweet and always said, "Hi Mrs. Motte!" and ran and gave me a BIG hug! I was so happy when he friended me on Facebook years later. I looked forward to his posts because he was always so positive and so loving. When there would be a friend memory that would pop up, he ALWAYS told that person how much he cared about them and how much he appreciated them being his friend. He did the same to me. I will never forget it. I cried when I heard that Justin was no longer with us. He truly was the kindest soul I had ever met. I always wish I could be more like him because he always saw the positive in things and was always nice. We could all learn lessons on how to live life from him. I will keep his family in my prayers. God bless them for what they are going through right now.
