“ I hope someone is still reading this page. Jay and I were next-door neighbors on Rogers Street, during our childhood in Fort Worth. Frank and Phoebe had only this one son, who was fondly indulged. Together we collected baseball cards, stamps, etc. On one occasion we were recklessly playing with his chemistry set and created a small explosion in his attic playroom. That was the end of the chemistry set.

I've followed Jay very infrequently through email and my rare visits to Facebook. Today I had a strange premonition and went online searching for him, and I found this. We shared a fondness for guitars and writing music. I never got to Piney Point to play in his annual hoe-downs. My best to the family.
