“ I have known Penni since we met in 5th grade. I moved to California during 9th grade, but we kept in touch over the phone and with letters. I would come back to Texas and visit every summer and we would spend time together. One summer I was visiting Texas with my new husband and Penni and Ronnie invited us to dinner at their apartment. Dustin was just a little baby. Penni took me in the bedroom and pulled out a box from under the bed. It was filled with all the little notes and drawings and letters that I had ever given to her. We sat down on the floor and she started reading the notes out loud (many from grade school). I don't think I have ever laughed so hard and long in my life. We were both falling over and laughing til we were crying. That is how I will always remember her. Thoughtful and sentimental: for having saved everything. Fun loving: for knowing how to see the funny and enjoy the heck out of it. I will miss you, Dear Penni.
