Margie,

I've been trying for days to upload the attached picture of Teresa to the Memorial site but I can't complete the upload for some reason. It's such a sweet pose and smile of Teresa while serving at my wedding reception, May 17, 1975! What a beauty inside and out! The middle girl is Steve's younger sister, Barb, who lives in London, and the far left is Carol, girlfriend of one of Steve's groomsmen at the time.

I am so sorry to hear of Teresa's passing and her struggle with cancer - and I wish I had seen more of her over the years after we each married and started our families. Even now I have a fond memory as a teenager in New Orleans returning from a church camp trip covered head to toe in permanent marker - and you all were in town for a visit - Teresa labored with me to scrub it all off - she was so kind to me! What a story!

If you know anyone that can upload photos, you are welcome to use this one. I hope people will share on the tribute wall - and I hope you find the inspiration to write and speak your part at the service - I can't imagine how hard that must be. Well, the verse 1 Corinthians 15:51-54 comes to mind: "Behold I tell you a mystery. We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet for the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we shall be changed, for this perishable body must put on the imperishable, and this mortal body must put on immortality. When the perishable puts on the imperishable, and the mortal puts on immortality, then shall come to pass the saying that is written: "Death is swallowed up in Victory.'" Steve and I have made plans to be cremated, too. So I expect to rise up as ashes - just like Teresa. Until that day, may she rest in peace, and in the hearts she left behind.

Love,
Diane

“ Mom,

I am so glad you are no longer in pain and resting comfortably. I know I was hard to raise, did not listen most of the time, and keep you up late when I was a teenager. I am grateful to you for all of the tough love and advice over the years. It was your guidance that help me grow into the man, husband, and father I am today. Love you always.
